3. This exemption order expires on the earlier of:

(a) the later of:

(ii) such later date as the Minister of the Environment may specify by notice in writing to the proponent and in THE ONTARIO GAZETTE, and

(b) the date of Approval of the Class EA for Small Scale MNR Projects.

Having been advised by The Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton that if the undertaking is subject to the application of the Act, the following injury, damage or interference with the persons and property indicated will occur:

A. The oily tar deposits which contain persistent toxic organic compounds harmful to aquatic organisms and human health will:

- (i) present a health risk to pedestrians using the transitway station, transit passengers in general and OC Transpo and Regional maintenance staff,
- (ii) present a health risk to area residents,
- (iii) prolong the exposure of aquatic organisms to harmful contaminants and pose an ongoing risk to downstream public water supplies, and
- (iv) pose a risk of scouring, downstream transport and redistribution of harmful contaminants over a much larger area of the aquatic environment.

B. The Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton will be interfered with in their effort to clean up the contaminated material in a timely manner.

Having weighed such injury, damage or interference against the betterment of the people of the whole or any part of Ontario by the protection, conservation and wise management in Ontario of the environment which would result from the undertaking being subject to the application of the Act;

The undersigned is of the opinion that it is in the public interest to order and orders that the undertaking is exempt from the application of the Act for the following reasons:

- A. The undertaking is expected to reduce the threat of damage to aquatic organisms and downstream public water supplies as a result of the presence of the oily tar deposits.
- B. The construction and operation of remedial works at the Lees Avenue Pumping Station will reduce the risk to human health in a timely manner by alleviating the oily tar problem at its source.
- C. Construction activities associated with the undertaking are expected to have minimal adverse environmental effects.

D. Officials of the potentially affected government agencies and the public, including, Ministry of the Environment, Environment Canada, National Capital Commission, Ministry of Transportation and Communications, The Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton, The Corporation of the City of Ottawa, Rideau Valley Conservation Authority, Algonquin College, Public Works Canada, Coast Guard, Parks Canada, Ministry of Natural Resources, Ministry of Labour and the local Public Health Unit were all advised of the site conditions and the measures to be taken to contain, control, treat and dispose of the contaminants involved.

E. News releases and public information reports have been issued on a regular basis to advise all concerned parties and the general public of the status of the situation at the Lees Avenue Transit Station and the Rideau River.

F. The Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton will ensure that all aspects of the undertaking are carried out in compliance with the regulatory requirements of the Environmental Protection Act and the Ontario Water Resources Act.

This exemption is subject to the following terms and conditions:

- 1. The method of excavating deposits will be carried out in such a way as to minimize creation of suspended sediment in the river. Bio-monitoring of bottom feeding organisms, sampled from both upstream and downstream of the site, will be carried out as well as turbidity monitoring.
- 2. The planning and design of the clean-up process will be made known to the potentially affected government agencies and the public by the distribution of news releases and the making available of project reports for public review.
- 3. Mitigation of adverse environmental effects during construction will be undertaken and will include:
 - (a) Compliance with the established waste management practices and a worker health protocol developed in consultation with the Ministry of Labour and approved by the Regional office of the Ministry of the Environment;
 - (b) Where appropriate, the construction area will be fenced and secured. The area will be patrolled in non-working hours. The public will not be permitted in the secured area;

(c) Buoys will be placed in the river to define the working area.

4. A written report shall be prepared after the undertaking is completed. The report shall record the results of the excavation and treatment procedures and how the terms and conditions of this Order were complied with. The report shall be submitted within three months after the undertaking is completed to the Director of the EA Branch of the Ministry of the Environment for filing with the public records kept under section 31 of the Environmental Assessment Act by the Branch at the Ministry's main office with a copy being sent to the Director, Southeastern Region, Ministry of the Environment.

SECTION 14

NOTICE OF APPROVAL TO PROCEED WITH
THE UNDERTAKINGRE: A Class Environmental Assessment for all
Municipal Road Projects

PROponents:

The Corporation of the City of Guelph
 The Corporation of the City of Sault Ste. Marie
 The Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto
 The Regional Municipality of Durham
 The Regional Municipality of Niagara
 The County of Lanark

EA FILE No.: 2-81-0002-000

TAKE NOTICE that the period for requiring a hearing, provided for in the Notice of Acceptance of the Environmental Assessment for the undertaking, expired on April 1, 1986. I received one notice requiring a hearing by the Environmental Assessment Board with respect to approval to proceed with the undertaking. I have decided, pursuant to clause 12 (2) (b) of the Act, that a hearing is unnecessary.

Having considered the purpose of the Act, the Environmental Assessment of the undertaking as amended and accepted and the submissions received, I hereby give approval to proceed with the undertaking subject to the conditions in the attached schedule.

REASONS:

My reasons for giving approval are:

1. On the basis of the proponent's Environmental Assessment, the Review, the amendments and submissions, the proponents have established appropriate planning procedures to ensure that the advantages of the projects carried out pursuant to this approval will outweigh the disadvantages of these projects.
2. The effectiveness of this Environmental Assessment in meeting the Act's purpose will be monitored and appropriate changes can be made to the Environmental Assessment during the approval period of five years.

Dated at Toronto, the 9th day of April, 1987.

Approved by O.C. No. 837/87.

JIM BRADLEY,
 Minister of the Environment,

SCHEDULE TO THE NOTICE OF APPROVAL TO PROCEED WITH THE UNDERTAKING
 DESCRIBED IN THE CLASS
 ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT FOR MUNICIPAL ROAD PROJECTS DATED
 APRIL 9, 1987

1. Except as provided by the subsequent conditions, the proponent shall comply with all provisions of the Environmental Assessment as amended and accepted which are herein incorporated by reference.
2. Notwithstanding condition 1, where a project approved hereby reaches the contact drawing stage (shown on the flow chart in the Environmental Assessment) by October 11, 1987, the proponent of the project need not comply with the other requirements of this approval.

(*The date selected will allow for a six-month phased implementation period.)

3. For the purposes of condition 2, "contract drawing stage" means that stage where the planning and design of a project is complete such that drawings to be used for tendering purposes or during construction can be prepared for signature by the senior municipal official authorized for such purposes.
4. Where two or more Environmental Assessment approvals affect a municipal road project, to which this Environmental Assessment approval applies, the requirements of each Environmental Assessment approval shall apply except to the extent the Minister has by notice in writing to the proponent ruled that one or more provisions in conflict with another provision shall not apply.
5. The Minister shall consider all requests for amendment to the Environmental Assessment submitted by the 6 proponents or submitted by the Municipal Engineers Association on behalf of the 6 proponents, and where in the opinion of the Minister, an amendment is necessary, shall cause to be issued to the public, any potentially affected municipality and provincial ministry and agency, a Notice of Proposed Amendment, allowing at least 30 days for comment. In reviewing these comments, the Minister shall have consideration for the intent of the Environmental Assessment and the requirements of the Environmental Assessment Act. The Minister may refer the amendment to Cabinet for approval, and if approved shall cause a Notice of Amendment to be given to all persons who made submissions and shall place a copy of the Notice in the Public Record.
6. This approval shall terminate on the earlier of:
 - (a) the date on which any new approval is issued for the undertaking under the Environmental Assessment Act and,
 - (b) subject to condition 8, the fifth anniversary of this approval.
7. Within four (4) years following this approval, the proponents or the Municipal Engineers Association, acting on behalf of the proponents, shall advise the Minister of the Environment regarding the appropriateness of extending this approval.
8. For the purposes of condition 6 (b), the Minister of the Environment may from time to time specify a later date by a notice in THE ONTARIO GAZETTE.
9. Notwithstanding the Environmental Assessment's division of activities related to roads into four categories, one of which is described in Schedule D as requiring individual environmental assessments, any activity which is listed in Schedule D may be treated as a Schedule C activity.

10. Where the proponent determines that, subject to the planning and design process described in the Environmental Assessment, that an activity listed in Schedule C or Schedule D merits an individual environmental assessment, the proponent shall prepare an individual environmental assessment for the project and this approval shall not apply any further to the project.
11. In accordance with condition 10, the preamble to Schedule C is hereby revised to read: "Subject to the unconditional approvals and conditional approvals cited in Schedules A and B, the following projects are proposed to be subject to the procedures of the Class EA process, unless a proponent determines that an activity listed in this Schedule merits an individual environmental assessment based on its scale and environmental significance. The proponent shall then prepare an individual environmental assessment for the project and the approval under the Class EA shall not apply any further to the project."
12. Conditions 9, 10 and 11 do not prevent or inhibit the operation of the bump-up provision described in section 5.2 of the Environmental Assessment.

ANNUAL REPORT

JANUARY 1st, 1985 TO DECEMBER 31st, 1985
SECTION 178.22 CRIMINAL CODE

Pursuant to Section 178.22 (5) of the Criminal Code of Canada, the following is a Report for the period January 1st, 1985 to December 31st, 1985, relating to the authorizations for which Agents specially designated in writing by the Attorney General for the purposes of Section 178.12 of the Criminal Code have made applications and the interceptions made thereunder.

As in previous years, the Attorney General for Ontario did not designate any police officers for the purpose of making emergency applications as the Province is adequately covered by senior Crown Law Officers designated as agents. Therefore, all applications for authorizations were made by senior Crown Law Officers who were designated by the Attorney General for Ontario for the purpose pursuant to Section 178.12.

The interception of private communications continues to be an important tool for the investigation, detection, prevention and prosecution of offences in Ontario. The following comments are made with a view to facilitating the interpretation of the statistical data contained in this report.

1. It should be noted that in some cases, an authorization may be obtained with no resultant interceptions in situations where evidence comes to light rendering the interceptions unnecessary. In other instances a likely suspect may be "cleared" by the interceptions absolving him of criminal responsibility in a particular investigation and as a result, of course, no charges are laid.
2. There were no reported applications for authorizations refused by the Courts this year. I am satisfied that this is due to the very stringent screening by senior police officers and my Agents before an application is made to the Judge. The majority of other provinces also report very few refusals.
3. All authorizations are granted subject to certain terms and conditions and we have reported the number of applications made subject to terms and conditions as being the same as the number of applications granted.
4. The number of notifications informing the person that he has been the subject to an interception is not necessarily the same as the total number of persons listed under sections (d) and (e) of these statistics. The same person may be listed under all three subsections of sections (d) and (e) where an authorization contains multiple offences.
5. Where authorizations were obtained which were in effect "renewals" and were related to the same persons and the same investigation, duplicate figures were not reported as this would give a distorted statistical view. For example, if four authorizations were related to the same investigation and the same four persons were named in each authorization and if four convictions were obtained - these were not reported as sixteen persons and sixteen convictions, but rather as four persons and four convictions.

6. With particular reference to section (1) – court proceedings, where evidence adduced and resultant convictions, the following should be taken into consideration.
 - (i) section 1 (ii) refers to the number of “proceedings” (court) that resulted in a conviction, not the number of “persons” convicted. The actual number of persons convicted is proportionate to the number of persons arrested;
 - (ii) the difference between the number of authorizations obtained and resultant convictions is explained by the fact that only a relatively small number of proceedings relating to charges for which an authorization has been obtained are instituted in the same calendar year as the authorization was granted. However, it will be seen that the ratio of convictions reported in any calendar year to the number of proceedings instituted in the same calendar year is very high.

Miscellaneous NoticeWORKERS' COMPENSATION BOARD OF ONTARIO

IN THE MATTER OF Section 86p of the Workers' Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 539, as amended;

AND IN THE MATTER OF the Findings of the Industrial Disease Standards Panel Regarding the Association between Gold Mining and Mortality from Lung Cancer and the Criteria for Compensation of Gold Miners who Have Developed Lung Cancer

REQUEST FOR SUBMISSIONS

Section 86p of the Workers' Compensation Act provides for the creation of an Industrial Disease Standards Panel (the "Panel"). It is the function of the Panel to:

- (a) investigate possible industrial diseases;
- (b) make findings as to whether a probable connection exists between a disease and an industrial process, trade or occupation in Ontario;
- (c) create, develop and revise criteria for the evaluation of claims respecting industrial diseases; and
- (d) advise on eligibility rules regarding compensation for claims respecting industrial diseases.

On August 18, 1986, the Workers' Compensation Board requested the Panel's opinion and advice on the association between experience in Ontario gold mines and excess mortality from lung cancer and the criteria to be considered for the compensation of gold miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer. On November 24, 1986, the Panel indicated to the Board that its report could not be prepared as expeditiously as the Board would have wished. As a result, on December 10, 1986, with the concurrences of the Panel, the Board requested that a scientific task force chaired by Dr. Anthony Miller investigate and report on the relevant subject matter. This report was to be in addition to the investigation conducted by the Panel. On March 30, 1987, the task force's report was received and transmitted to the Panel. On April 22, 1987, the industrial Disease Standards Panel provided its Report to the Board.

Attached to this notice is:

1. the Panel's Letter of Transmittal;
2. the Panel's Statement;
3. the Report of the Panel;
4. a Statement of Dissent; and

5. the Report of the Miller Task Force annexed as Appendix "C" to the Report of the Industrial Disease Standards Panel.

Please note that although for reasons of brevity appendices "A" and "B" to the Report of the Industrial Disease Standards Panel are not published along with the Report, they may be obtained by writing to the address referred to below.

In accordance with section 86p(11) of the Workers' Compensation Act, the Board is publishing this notice setting forth the nature of the findings of the Panel and requesting written submissions for filing with the Board within 60 days of the date of this notice.

All submissions should be sent to:

Mr. Andrew Emmink,
Acting Secretary of the Board,
Workers' Compensation Board,
2 Bloor Street East,
20th Floor,

Upon the expiry of the 60 day period for filing submissions, the Board may accept the findings of the Panel, with or without amendments, or it may reject the findings.

Notice of the Board's acceptance or rejection, with reasons therefor, will be published in THE ONTARIO GAZETTE.

Dr. R. G. Elgie,
Chairman,
Workers' Compensation Board,
2 Bloor Street East,
20th Floor,
Toronto, Ontario M4W 3C3.

Dear Dr. Elgie:

In a letter dated August 18, 1986 the Board requested the Industrial Disease Standards Panel to respond to a number of questions about the occurrence of lung cancer and stomach cancer among persons who have worked in Ontario gold mines.

The Panel is pleased to send to the Board its Report of Findings in this matter in accordance with Section 86p(10) of the Workers' Compensation Act. While the Panel is unanimous with respect to both findings with respect to probable connection, there is appended a Statement of Dissent by two members of the Panel with respect to certain consequent issues.

In not finding a probable connection between stomach cancer and occupational groups within the Ontario gold mining industry, the Panel considers the evidentiary base as it now exists to be both biologically inconsistent with a premise of connection and inconclusive. The Panel intends to review the evidence when the Muller Report is updated and requests that as full as possible an update be carried out as soon as possible.

The Panel will be pleased to respond to questions the Board may have about its findings.

Yours sincerely,

James M. Ham,
Chairman.

FROM:

Industrial Disease Standards Panel

RE:

Report on Ontario Gold Mining Industry

1.0 ISSUES AND FINDINGS:

1.1 In a letter dated August 18, 1986, the Workers' Compensation Board requested that the Industrial Disease Standards Panel provide to the Board responses to the following questions:

1. What is the Panel's opinion on the association between experience in Ontario gold mines and excess mortality from lung cancer;
2. What is the Panel's advice on the criteria to be considered for the compensation of gold miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer;
3. What criteria should the WCB employ to compensate mixed ore miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer?
4. Does there exist sufficient evidence for the WCB to provide compensation benefits to gold or mixed ore miners who have subsequently contracted stomach cancer?
5. If the answer to the fourth question is yes then what criteria should the Board employ to compensate this category of workers?

1.2 For reasons fully described in the Report of the Special Panel (attached hereto as Appendix A), the Panel believes that the original definitions of gold mining occupational groups as used in the Muller reports can be improved. The revised definitions as used by the Panel require exposure in 'dusty' gold mining jobs (as set out in Table 5 of the Report of the Special Panel) as the pivotal criterion for admission into one or more of the occupational cohorts used to study the Board's questions set out above. The Special Panel defined in particular an ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort. As a direct consequence of this definition, the original separation into gold and mixed ore mining groups became no longer relevant. The Panel then set about responding to the Board's questions by examining the issue of occupational risk of lung and stomach cancers within its ALL GOLD MINERS' (and related) groups.

1.3 The Panel has used as its evidentiary base the Muller et al. Reports (1983 and 1986), and supplements to the latter, as well as the Report of its own Special Panel on the Ontario gold mining industry and a further Report (authored by Miller et al.) prepared at the Board's request and subsequently provided to the Panel.

1.4 On the basis of this evidence:

FINDING 1:

AT THIS TIME, THE PANEL FINDS A PROBABLE CONNECTION BETWEEN LUNG CANCER AND CERTAIN OCCUPATIONAL GROUPS WITHIN THE ONTARIO GOLD MINING INDUSTRY.

There is both sound statistical and biologically consistent evidence of a burden of excess lung cancer disease among these workers.

FINDING 2:

AT THIS TIME, THE PANEL DOES NOT FIND A PROBABLE CONNECTION BETWEEN STOMACH CANCER AND OCCUPATIONAL GROUPS WITHIN THE ONTARIO GOLD MINING INDUSTRY.

There is not, in the evidentiary base used by the Panel, biologically consistent evidence of an occupational origin for excess stomach cancer among these workers.

1.5 The Board has, in a separate communication, requested advice on the matter of the 'healthy worker effect'. The Panel has not responded as yet on this issue and it is not considered further in this document.

1.6 The Panel urges the Board to update the Muller studies of the Ontario gold mining industry as quickly as possible and to make this update available to the Panel. The Panel will then review the new evidence to determine if any changes in these findings are in order.

2.0 THE BURDEN OF EXCESS LUNG CANCER DISEASE:

2.1 An estimate of the extent of the burden of excess lung cancer disease is given by the Standardized Mortality Ratios (SMR) derived by Dr. Muller, by Dr. Shannon (in the Report of the Special Panel), and by Drs. Miller et al., using a variety of cohort definitions. Dr. Muller's value for the lung cancer SMR is 140 and Dr. Shannon's values, for different cohort definitions, range from 130 to 143, while Dr. Miller's estimate is 138. The cohort from the Special Panel's study that is deemed most relevant is the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort (see Table A below).

Cohort	Person Years at Risk	Observed Deaths	Expected Deaths	SMR O/E	Excess O-E
Muller	111,265	165	117.5	140	47.5
All Gold Miners	150,181.5	209	148.5	141	60.5
Miller et al.	N/A	237	171.5	138	65.5

Table A: Muller, Special Panel and Miller Cohorts

For admission to the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort, a person had to have at least five years of work experience in dust exposure in a gold mine either underground or in one or more of a particular set of surface jobs verified as "dusty" by the labour and management advisers to the Special Panel. Of the sixty months minimum, at least one half month had to be dusty work in an Ontario gold mine. For admission to the Muller cohort, a person had to have had 60 months of dusty mining experience including one half month in dusty Ontario gold mine work; and further, at least 85% of the person's mining experience had to have been in a gold mining environment. To be designated an underground gold miner in Muller's study, a person required at least 50% of his total work experience to have been underground in a gold mine. The Miller et al. study apparently includes all persons classified by Dr. Muller as mixed ore miners, some of whom have not had enough gold mining experience to qualify for his gold mining cohort or the Special Panel's ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort.

- 2.2 With respect to gold mining experience, the Special Panel's ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort is more specific than either the Muller or Miller et al. cohort. It is deemed appropriate to use this cohort in estimating the burden of excess disease carried by gold miners.
- 2.3 The reference value for further discussion of the SMR will be 141. Recall that the SMR is O/E in percent where O is the number of observed lung cancer deaths in the study cohort and E is the number of expected cases in the reference population. An SMR is a statistic which estimates an unknown "true" value. If an epidemiological study, as represented by the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort, were repeated in a number of situations like that of Ontario miners, different SMR's would be expected and, nineteen times out of twenty, these SMR's would be expected to lie between 123 and 161. These numbers are called the 95% confidence limits.
- 2.4 In the circumstances we are dealing with, we have no clear specific knowledge of the aetiology of an excess of lung cancer among gold miners. We know that in the atmosphere breathed by miners there have been historically varying amounts of silica bearing dust and of carcinogens such as arsenic and radon. The only quantified basis available to the Panel for estimating the burden of industrial disease is the epidemiological record. The epidemiological data, which reflect circumstances as assessed in the study period ending in 1977, provide a first estimate of the burden of excess disease as (O-E) where O is the number of observed deaths due to lung cancer (lung, bronchus, trachea) and E is the number of expected deaths in the reference population. For the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort in Table A, this number is 60.5 For the study period ending in 1977, this estimate is deemed to be conservative for several reasons discussed in the next two paragraphs. In addition, no cases of lung cancer of miners who died before 1955 or after 1977 are included in the study.

- 2.5 The Panel has structured the recommendations that follow with the intent of ensuring that the full extent of the burden of excess disease is compensated. Table A demonstrates that there are uncertainties in estimating the burden of excess disease that are associated with the definitions of different but related cohorts. Furthermore, with each individual study, there are associated bounds of uncertainty implied in the statistical methodology. It is more acceptable, when there is clear evidence of a burden of excess disease, to err on the side of over-estimation than of under-estimation. The issue is one of our society's respect for life, health and bodily integrity as fundamental values for those at work in a situation where the costs of compensation are collected from employers. While the circumstances that led to the burden of excess lung cancer among gold miners are believed for the most part to have characterized working conditions decades ago, the issue of compensation for this burden is to be judged today.
- 2.6 The Panel deems it appropriate to use the 95% rule as its policy basis for the true estimate of the burden of occupational disease. Simply stated, if the basis for asserting the existence of a 'probable connection' is that the SMR must be significantly greater than 100 (in percent terms) at the 95% level, then, on the grounds of fairness, the upper bound on the estimate of the true value of the SMR should be used to determine the excess disease burden. Therefore, the burden of disease is defined as a number (O'-E), where E is the standard expected number of cases and O' is the number of observed cases that would correspond to the value of the SMR at the upper 95% confidence limit on the standard SMR. For the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort, E =

148.5, $O = 209$ and the standard SMR is 141. If the SMR is taken as $SMR' = O'/E = 161$, then $O' = 239.3$ and $O'-E = 90.8$.

2.7 FINDING 3:

ACCORDING TO THE FOREGOING PROCEDURE, THE PANEL'S ESTIMATE OF THE BURDEN OF EXCESS LUNG CANCER DISEASE IN THE ALL GOLD MINERS' COHORT BETWEEN 1955 AND 1977 IS 91 CASES (90.8 ROUNDED).

3.0 ELIGIBILITY RULES:

3.1 Explicit eligibility rules can be formulated only in terms of evidence available from that subset of the criteria of case adjudication which offer reasonably clear and biologically consistent indicators of the work-relatedness of the disease in question.

3.2 Dr. Muller's epidemiological study, the related studies by Dr. Miller et al. and by the Special Panel under Dr. Shannon show limited evidence of biologically consistent criteria of work-relatedness. These notes first review the Special Panel results and then comment on the Miller study.

3.3 Table 11 (Appendix A) shows that the standard SMR for lung cancer in the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort increases consistently from 67 to 159 as the time elapsed since first "dust" exposure increases from the interval 5-9 years to the interval more than 30 years. The longer intervals could only have been achieved if a significant part of such exposures took place before or during the second World War. Indeed the correlation desired in this regard is provided by Table 10 (Appendix A) which shows that the standard SMR for members of the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort whose first exposure was before 1936 is 165 and declines to 99 for those whose first exposure was in or after 1950. From the data of Table 10, the distribution of the Standard (O-E) estimate of excess deaths (of 60.5 in total) by time period is 50.3 for <1936, 11.3 for 1936-1944 and 1.1 for 1945-1949 and negative for >1950. Thus almost all the burden of excess disease is attributable to the time period before 1945.

3.4 It is important to note from Table 9 (Appendix A) that there is no consistent evidence that increased duration of exposure (without regard to when it occurred) leads to increased risk of disease.

3.5 The foregoing evidence is consistent with the fact that the "dustiness" of mine atmospheres may be deemed to have declined to present day levels from much more severe historical levels. This is confirmed by information from the Report of the Royal Commission on the Health and Safety of Workers in Mines (1976, pg. 44), from records of historical dust levels provided through the Ontario Mining Association (Appendix B: Muller, J.; letter dated June 13, 1985) and from advice provided by labour and management advisers to the Special Panel (Report of the Special Panel; Section 1.2, pp. 14-17).

3.6 The Special Panel analyzed the SMR for lung cancer as a function of duration of exposure weighted by a dust index indicating dust severity by calendar period (and defined in Appendix A, pp. 37-38). The resulting data is shown in Figure 2 (Appendix A) where $\text{Excess Relative Risk} = SMR-1 = (O-E)/E$ is plotted versus weighted years in dust exposure. Figure 2 provides a relatively linear dose response function which is highly pertinent to the issue of compensation.

3.7 Using Figure 2 as a dose-response function, it may be judged that cases of lung cancer for which the weighted dust exposure index is highest are most likely to represent the disease burden among the mining occupations exposed to gold dust. Accordingly it is proposed that the following eligibility rule be adopted by the Board:

ELIGIBILITY RULE 1:

THAT LUNG CANCER CASES AMONG ONTARIO GOLD MINERS IN DUSTY OCCUPATIONS (APPENDIX A, TABLE 5) WHOSE WEIGHTED DUST EXPOSURE IS 60 OR MORE BE COMPENSATED.

This would have the effect of compensating those cases of lung cancer with 15 years of exposure prior to 1936, with 17 years prior to 1945, or with 22 years of exposure prior to 1955.

3.8 From Table 15 (Appendix A), the foregoing rule would lead to the compensation of 82 cases which would represent 90 percent of the estimated burden of excess disease within the perspective of the ALL GOLD MINERS' cohort for the period 1955-1977 which includes dust exposed occupations as listed in Table 5.

3.9 The panel makes the following further recommendations:

RECOMMENDATION 1:

THAT THE BOARD METICULOUSLY SEARCH OUT ALL HISTORICAL CASES OF LUNG CANCER AMONG GOLD MINERS;

RECOMMENDATION 2:

THAT FOR ALL CASES ELIGIBLE FOR ADMISSION TO AN HISTORICALLY EXTENDED ALL GOLD MINERS' COHORT, ELIGIBILITY RULE 1 SHALL APPLY. MOREOVER, A CAREFUL CASE ASSESSMENT MUST BE CARRIED OUT USING THE TOTALITY OF INFORMATION THAT CAN REASONABLY BE COLLECTED WITH RESPECT TO ALL CRITE-

RIA OF CASE EVALUATION CITED IN SECTION 4.0;

RECOMMENDATION 3:

THAT ALL OTHER CASES BE ADJUDICATED ON THEIR MERITS. THE PANEL NOTES IN THIS REGARD THAT IT IS COMMON FOR A MINER IN THE COURSE OF HIS CAREER TO WORK IN A VARIETY OF OCCUPATIONS AND IN A NUMBER OF MINES. WHILE THESE CIRCUMSTANCES CREATE A MEASURE OR AVERAGING OF CONDITIONS OF EXPOSURE IT IS CLEARLY POSSIBLE FOR INDIVIDUALS TO HAVE EXPERIENCED EXPOSURES OVER TIME MORE INTENSE THAN ARE INDICATED BY WEIGHTED AVERAGE DUST EXPOSURE;

RECOMMENDATION 4:

THAT IN EFFECTING CASE ASSESSMENTS, THE BOARD DRAW FROM ALL THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE CASE AND ALL THE EVIDENCE DISCOVERED BY OR PRESENTED TO IT EVERY REASONABLE INFERENCE IN FAVOUR OF THAT CLAIMANT; AND ACCEPT AS PROOF OF ANY FACT THAT THE CLAIMANT IS REQUIRED TO PROVE, ANY CREDIBLE EVIDENCE SUBMITTED BY HIM THAT IS NOT CONTRADICTED AND WHERE, IN WEIGHING ANY EVIDENCE SUBMITTED TO IT, ANY DOUBT EXISTS AS TO WHETHER THE CLAIMANT HAS ESTABLISHED HIS CASE, THE BOARD SHALL RESOLVE SUCH DOUBT IN FAVOUR OF THE CLAIMANT (DRAWN FROM THE REPORT OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION OF MATTERS OF HEALTH AND SAFETY ARISING FROM THE USE OF ASBESTOS IN ONTARIO, CHAP. 13, SECT. D, BENEFIT OF DOUBT POLICY, PP. 765-7).

4.0 CRITERIA OF CASE EVALUATION:

- 4.1 It is impossible to identify with complete assurance the particular subset of all observed cases of lung cancer that represent the burden of excess disease. The extent of the global burden of disease can, as we have just seen, be at best estimated. Nevertheless, in the situation at issue, there is an excellent data base capable of yielding statistically strong global estimates.
- 4.2 To deal with the question of criteria of evaluation we must conceive of assessing each and every observed case according to a set of criteria and then of ranking all the cases in descending order of likelihood of being work related (and therefore part of the burden of excess disease) according to the "weight" given to the various criteria of judgement. If we imagine this having been done, and having in mind the total number of cases that represents the estimate of the burden of excess disease, we then partition off a number of cases approximately equal to the estimated global burden of excess disease. The rules for doing this first partition are considered by the Panel to constitute eligibility rules. These rules are to be interpreted basically as being rules of presumption of compensability. These rules are to be derived from the structure of the available evidence which in our situation is largely epidemiological. Such rules do not preclude the adjudication of any case claim on its merits in relation to all available criteria of evaluation.

- 4.3 In the process of judging individual cases, "the benefit of the doubt" is to apply within the overall context of a defined global burden of excess disease and the adjudicatory process of weighing evidence.
- 4.4 With respect to claims by miners, the following are 12 generic criteria within which a case claim may be assessed. The specificity of available information for individual cases or groups of cases under the different criteria will vary enormously:

4.4.1. Geology

The nature of the valuable mineral in the mine together with the configuration of the deposit (veins) and the nature of the associated matrix of waste rocks and trace elements.

Comment

This criteria can be used to distinguish one mine from another. Uranium is ubiquitous in the earth's crust and therefore radon, thoron, gamma and other radiation will be emanated at associated levels. Arsenic and fibrous substances may be present at varying levels in the minerals. Different levels of silica characterize ore bodies.

4.4.2. Mine Design

The configuration of the mine in terms of shafts, adits, drifts, stopes, drawholes, and transportation practices has a bearing on the potential of the mine to be associated with risks to health in its working atmosphere.

4.4.3. Mine Operation - Technology

Associated with the mine configuration is the kind of technology used to extract ore. This technology relates to: i) drilling; ii) blasting; iii) transporting broken rocks; iv) crushing; v) water supply; vi) ventilation; vii) grinding; viii) separation processes.

Comment

Some mines are of large scale and use for example diesel operated vehicles which produce fumes. Others are small scale. In any event the technology of a mine may experience significant changes over the lifetime of the mine and have significant influence on the risks to health expressed in the working atmosphere.

4.4.4. Mine Operation – Work Practices

Mine design and technology largely determine the categories and numbers of jobs associated with company operations. It is useful to identify the relative exposures likely to be associated with specific jobs.

4.4.5. Mine Operation – Production

A record of production levels is pertinent to the levels of exposure that may be expected in various calendar periods.

4.4.6. Mine Operation – Mine Environment

With respect to lung disease, the character of the mine environment that workers may encounter is of particular concern. All evidence in records related to total dust, silica, radon and other sources of radioactivity, diesel fumes, arsenic, carbon monoxide, mists from drilling, from metallurgical separation processes etc., may be of relevance. Historical records are often missing and trends for conditions in particular mines may only be capable of being inferred from historical industry trends and competent judgments of the "quality" of particular mines.

4.4.7. Work History – Occupations

The particular occupation (job category) or occupations carried out for specific calendar periods in specific mines represent key information relevant to a case claim. The significance of these data is to be seen in the context of the preceding criteria.

4.4.8. Work History – Year of Start Mining

Since environmental conditions are known to have changed significantly from the early days of mining in Ontario to the present, the starting point for a working career in mining is of particular interest.

4.4.9. Work History – Age at Start of Mining

Initial age may be an important variable in conjunction with items 8 and 10 related to the likelihood of the onset of industrial disease.

4.4.10. Work History – Years in Mining and other Occupations

The sequence of years spent by a worker in the various occupations in various mines and other occupations which describe his working lifetime is information of particular relevance to a case claim.

4.4.11. Personal Medical History

Available information (concerning chest x-rays, other medical diagnostic records and work-related characteristics) is critical to case assessment and may provide, as in the case of chest x-rays, surrogate evidence of the dustiness of mine atmospheres.

4.4.12. Other Worker Populations

Evidence for other working populations in other jurisdictions may be useful.

5.0 COMMENTS ON MILLER ET AL. REVIEW OF EVIDENCE:

- 5.1 The Board commissioned Miller et al. to provide advice on the issue of compensation among gold miners for lung cancer and stomach cancer. It was initiated only after the Panel advised the Board in December, 1987, that it was unable to provide advice to the Board in the short time frame the public circumstances were deemed to warrant. Nonetheless, the Special Panel study by the Panel and the Board's separately commissioned study have been completed at the same time and therefore represent independent examinations of the same issues.
- 5.2 Miller et al. confirmed the appropriateness of Muller's methodology, and of his conclusion that gold mining, as an occupation, has shown a clear association with an increased risk for lung cancer. Since they found that the lung cancer experience for mixed ore miners was similar to that for gold miners, they have not distinguished between the two groups in their recommendations for compensation.
- 5.3 One of the major concerns expressed in the Miller et al. Report in attempting to establish eligibility rules for lung cancer was the fact that Muller's data did not show a clear relationship between excess lung cancer and duration of exposure or between excess lung cancer and time from first exposure. In the absence of such a clear relationship they considered radiological evidence of silicosis to be a reasonable marker of "dose". They were able to identify two subgroups which approximated the excess burden of lung cancer: miners employed before 1945 with chest x-ray rating B (Ontario Code 4) or C (Ontario Code greater than 4).
- 5.4 The use of a chest x-ray rating as a decision criterion poses a clinical/diagnostic problem. While epidemiologically appropriate for identifying groups at risk, there are potential biases when applied to individuals. There is well recognized inter- and intra-observer variation in assigning categories of rating. It would be more likely for an individual with a previous positive reading to be assigned to a positive category (even if the "truth" were negative), and the key decision, based on when, for example, a Code 3 becomes a Code

- 4, increases the likelihood of assignment error.
- 5.5 There is also concern about the premise that the presence of silicosis would identify increased risk for lung cancer because silica is a carcinogen. Although some studies suggest that silica may be a carcinogen, the issue remains controversial, and the International Agency for Research in Cancer (IARC) has categorized silica as having "limited" evidence for human carcinogenicity.
- 5.6 In the Report of the Special Panel (Section 2.1), the lack of a strong association between the excess silicotic cases removed from the 1986 gold mining cohort and lung cancer weakens the argument of silicosis being a primary cause of lung cancer. Further, foundry studies have shown an excess risk for lung cancer similar in magnitude to that for gold miners but a much smaller incidence of silicosis. These discrepancies cast doubt on the role of silica as a primary carcinogen in gold miners, and it would be inappropriate to use silicosis as a "marker".
- 5.7 Miller et al. outlined several difficulties with the excess stomach cancer cases that precluded their acceptance as being causally related to gold mining. Among the concerns were: an over-representation of men not born in North America; a reversal of a possible dose response relationship (i.e. only a slight increase in mortality in those with the highest dust exposure, and a significant excess in those with the least exposure); the finding of no increase in stomach cancer in "mixed ore" miners as compared to "gold" miners, while both have similar risks of excess lung cancer; and a marked deficit in other gastro-intestinal cancer.

MEMORANDUM TO:

The Workers' Compensation Board

FROM:

Linda Jolley and Jean Louis Gagnon
Members of the Industrial Disease Standards Panel

RE:

DISSENT FROM MAJORITY REPORT ON
ONTARIO GOLD MINING INDUSTRY.

1.0 ISSUES AND FINDINGS

Consensus was reached at this time on all items in Section 1.0, with the understanding that the research on stomach cancer will be updated at the earliest possible time.

2.0 THE BURDEN OF EXCESS LUNG CANCER DISEASE

We, as panel members, cannot agree with the majority view put forward on the total burden of lung cancer experienced by gold miners in Ontario. To limit the total burden of compensable lung cancer to only those miners, whose exposures fall within the statistical excess identified through epidemiological methods, means that we ignore the very real contribution that gold mining as an occupation made to all of the lung cancer experienced by that group. After all, the case control study found that smoking was not a variable in this group's lung cancer. It is clear from the Special Panel's analyses that there is a dose-response relationship between the weighted exposures and excess risk, but there is no identifiable threshold in this data. Indeed, the dose-response curve is dramatically presented in Figure 2., showing almost a straight line through zero, which establishes that every exposure above zero contributes to these miners' risk of lung cancer. And therefore, by limiting the burden to only those identified as excess, we are ignoring this very real contribution.

As well, by limiting the burden of compensable lung cancer to only those miners, who fall within the statistical excess, we ignore legitimate claims from miners whose lung cancer contributed to the overall cancer burden in the Ontario population.

Entry into the cohort, while broadened in the Special Panel's analysis, is still limited to those miners with a minimum of 60 months in gold mining exposure who were alive at some point between 1955 and 1977 and had been x-rayed at the miners' clinic. By restricting the cohort in this way, we may have missed disease in miners with short-term exposures or those who have died before 1955 or were unable to be x-rayed. And this too can underestimate the actual burden of lung cancer experienced in this group.

The cut-off date for follow-up in all these studies was 1977, and it is clear in the analysis of disease among early miners that latency periods, from the time of first exposure to actual death, were as long as thirty years before the true extent of the cancer excess was demonstrated statistically. Therefore, to draw any conclusions about miners starting after 1955, especially to suggest that there is little or no risk, as the Eligibility Rule implies, is not only inappropriate but unfounded. Again, the clear dose-response relationship indicates no threshold and shows that every exposure in gold mining carries some risk. We have simply not had sufficient time of follow-up to demonstrate the disease, statistically.

Nor, as we stated in Section 1.0, have we dealt with the Healthy Worker effect which tends to minimize risk especially in workers at early follow-up.

At this time, we do not know exactly what causes the lung cancer nor are we prepared to limit the causative agent to silica only. Radon, arsenic and other carcinogens have been identified in these mines. Until we have a clear understanding of the causative agent or agents and their carcinogenic action, we cannot draw conclusions about which miners are even exposed to what agents, and the extent of the exposure necessary to initiate or promote cancer.

While we believe that epidemiology can identify a probable connection between lung cancer and working in gold mining, we do not believe that epidemiology is able to identify those individual workers who are suffering from an occupational disease. It is an ecological fallacy to presume that statistical studies of groups with their methodological shortcomings can produce very rigid Eligibility Rules for determining individual cases.

Therefore, at this time, we as panel members do not believe that we are able to accurately estimate the true burden of lung cancer experienced by the gold miners in Ontario.

3.0 ELIGIBILITY RULES

The Eligibility Rule proposed in the Majority Report requires an exposure weighted at 60 for any miner to be automatically eligible for compensation. And what this means in reality is neither supportable nor appropriate. The Special Panel developed a weighting system as follows:

Exposures before 1936 are weighted at 4;

Exposures between 1936 and 1944 are weighted at 3;

Exposures between 1945 and 1954 are weighted at 2;

Exposures after 1954 are weighted at 1.

Therefore to actually qualify, a miner would have to have one of the following:

15 years of exposure before 1936;

20 years of exposure between 1936 and 1944;

30 years of exposure between 1945 and 1954;

60 years of exposure after 1955;

or a combination of years at whatever exposure that will add up to 60 or more.

Indeed, a miner starting work after 1955, will never be eligible under this rule. No miner could fulfill the 60 years of exposure given our present age limits on when we can start work and when we must retire.

Once again we refer back to the dose-response relationship in the Special Panel's Figure 2 which demonstrates risk at every exposure above zero, which indicates to us that restrictive Eligibility Rules that require 15 to 60 years of exposure are not supportable. Nor, as we stated in our section on short follow-up, can a criteria of 60 years of exposure be justified in miners exposed since 1955. Indeed, both the Special Panel and Miller et al. (Table 17 and Table P-2) indicate elevated SMR's for much shorter exposures for those miners exposed before 1945. The Special Panel shows elevated SMR's for exposures of less than five years and the Miller et al. data show elevated SMR's and excess death at exposures of less than 2 years (0.1 to 20 months) and less than 4 years (20.1 to 40 months). Therefore, we do not accept that the data supports this restrictive Eligibility Rule.

Nor can we as panel members support a criteria that can never be met by any miner presently employed in our gold mines.

While the Majority Report attempts to address careful case assessment for all gold miners and especially those who do not meet the Eligibility Rule, the burden is still placed on proving the miner's claim, and therefore, ultimately on that miner or his or her family to prove their case. Miners must not only bear the burden of disease, but then they must bear the burden of proving its work-relatedness.

Since we believe that a probable connection between lung cancer and gold mining has been demonstrated, it is appropriate for the Workers' Compensation Board to use Section 122 (9) of the Workers' Compensation Act for the purposes of compensating these miners. Section 122 (9) states:

122—(9) If the worker at or before the date of disablement was employed in the process mentioned in the second column of Schedule 3 and the disease contracted is the disease in the first column of the Schedule set out opposite to the description of the process, the disease shall be deemed to have been due to the nature of that employment unless the contrary is proved.

Therefore, we as panel members recommend:

ELIGIBILITY RULE:

THAT LUNG CANCER AND GOLD MINING BE ENTERED INTO SCHEDULE 3 OF THE WORKERS' COMPENSATION ACT, AND THAT LUNG CANCER SHALL BE DEEMED TO HAVE BEEN DUE TO THE NATURE OF GOLD MINING UNLESS THE CONTRARY IS PROVED.

We would then concur with RECOMMENDATION 1. in the Majority Report that the Workers' Compensation Board meticulously search out all historical cases of lung cancer, but because the presumption would be given to the miners in these cases, the rest of the Majority Recommendations are unnecessary.

APPENDIX C

REPORT OF THE MILLER ET AL.
SCIENTIFIC PANELReport of Scientific Panel on "Mortality from Cancer among Ontario Gold Miners 1955-1977"

Introduction

In December 1986 we were approached to form a special scientific panel to assess the findings from a Study on Cancer among Ontario Gold Miners 1955-1977. The initial approach was to Dr. Miller who agreed to set up a small scientific panel to assess various aspects of this study. Dr. Miller met with Dr. Kaegi, Vice-President Policy Planning and Specialized Services of The Workers' Compensation Board of Ontario on December 10, 1986 and agreed on the approach to be adopted to set up the panel and for it to function efficiently. In a letter dated December 16, 1986 to Dr. Miller, Dr. Kaegi regretted the absence of formal letters of appointment but provided a copy of a letter dated August 18, 1986 addressed to Dr. James Ham, Chairman of the Industrial Disease Standards Panel in which the original request of the Board to the Panel was set out. We were given to understand that it was our task to evaluate the questions in that letter from the scientific viewpoint.

We have, therefore, interpreted our terms of reference to provide our opinions to the Board on the following points:

1. The nature of the association between experience in Ontario gold mines and excess mortality from lung cancer.
2. The criteria to be considered for the compensation of gold miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer.

We have also regarded the additional questions asked of the panel as providing for us three further terms of reference.

3. What criteria should the WCB employ to compensate mixed ore miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer?
4. Does there exist sufficient evidence for the WCB to provide compensation benefits to gold or mixed ore miners who have subsequently contracted stomach cancer?
5. If the answer to the second question is yes, then what criteria should the Board employ to compensate this category of workers?

Dr. Miller requested additional clarification over the request relating to stomach cancer and in a letter dated December 18, 1986, Dr. Kaegi confirmed that The Workers' Compensation Board does need to reach some conclusions on the issue of stomach cancer in gold miners and requested the panel's opinion on this aspect as well as the primary issue of lung cancer.

These terms of reference have, therefore, dominated our considerations, though in our report we depart, for reasons of efficiency, from providing our opinion on these various issues in the exact order just presented. However, in our final Conclusion and Recommendations section we return to these terms of reference.

Method of Procedure

In her initial discussions with Dr. Miller, Dr. Kaegi gave him the authority to decide on the membership of the scientific panel. It was, however, agreed that the panel should preferably consist of no more than three members: Dr. Miller whose specialty is cancer epidemiology; another epidemiologist; and an expert in carcinogenesis.

After consulting with colleagues in Canada and the United States, Dr. Miller approached and received the agreement of Dr. D. Scarpelli, Chairman of the Department of Pathology, Northwestern Memorial University, Chicago and Dr. Noel Weiss, Chairman of the Department of Epidemiology, University of Washington School of Public Health and Community Medicine, Seattle to serve on the panel. The report which follows is our agreed response to the terms of reference. We are unanimous on its content and recommendations.

Two formal meetings of the Scientific Panel have been held, the first in Chicago on December 17, 1986 during which we agreed on our approach to the terms of reference and to the tasks we would attempt to complete and the second in Chicago on January 30, 1987. In addition we have had several telephone calls and exchanges of correspondence in order to finalize this report.

Material Considered

The principal document we considered was the report, "Study of Mortality of Ontario Gold Miners 1955-1977" by J. Muller, R. A. Kusiak, G. Suranyi and A. C. Ritchie, released as a public document by the Ontario Ministry of Labour, The Workers' Compensation Board of Ontario and the Atomic Energy Control Board of Canada, in July 1986. In addition we were provided with a copy of further statistical information appearing as an enclosure to a letter dated September 23, 1986 to Dr. Robert G. Elgie, Chairman of The Workers' Compensation Board from Dr. Muller. We also had available the original report on the study of mortality of Ontario miners 1955-1977, Part 1, May 1983 and we were provided at our request after our meeting on January 30 with detailed tabulations relating to a further breakdown of the data in the July 1986 document, and also some corrections to the material provided in the September 23, 1986 document.

We have also consulted other material. These include the various references which we cite in our report, some of which we identified as a result of a Medline search, the remainder as a result of our own knowledge of the literature and the literature identifiable through the various reports and publications we have consulted. In addition we were supplied with comments and criticisms of the July 1986 report submitted to The Workers' Compensation tion Board for our consideration by the United Steel Workers of America and the Ontario Mining Association. Finally we have also received a copy of Dr. Muller's notes on the brief presented by the Ontario Mining Association to the Industrial Disease Standards Panel.

Notes on Tables

In referring to Tables from the specific reports or data made available to us on the experience in Ontario gold and mixed ore miners, we shall use the Table numbers applied in the relevant documents with a suffix. Table 1, 1986 signifies Table 1 in the July 1986 report. Table 1, Supplement refers to Table 1 in the supplementary data provided, subsequently amended.

However from these Tables and also from the special breakdown of sub-groups provided to us by Mr. Suranyi, we use the prefix P to indicate that this is a Table produced by us as part of our special panel review.

Observations on Mortality from Cancer among Ontario gold Miners, 1955-1977

In judging whether or not employment in Ontario gold mines caused an increased risk of dying from cancer, the data that appeared in the report issued in May 1983 were not considered. In that report, there was no exclusion of the self-selected group of miners who continued to attend medical examinations after stopping work, a group probably at unusually high risk of death. Thus, it is appropriate to rely on the 1986 report, which is based on an analysis of the mortality experience only of men who had not retired prior to 1955, and the supplementary analyses provided to us.

I. Cancer of the Lung

As shown in Table 1, 1986, there were a greater number of deaths from lung cancer (165) than would have been expected in the general population (117.5). A similar increase in mortality was seen for the "mixed ore" miners, but not for the men whose jobs involved only part-time underground work. While the potentially more important confounding non-occupational exposure, cigarette smoking, was not measured precisely, it appears that these underground miners' excess risk of lung cancer could not be attributable to an unusually high prevalence of cigarette smoking—their smoking habits were quite similar to those of men who mined nickel and copper, and yet the latter group had no increased mortality from lung cancer.

We sought to determine whether all or only some categories of miners were at increased risk. There was a number of characteristics that did not appear to influence the magnitude of the excess mortality:

- (a) Overall duration of exposure (Table 4, 1986);
- (b) Time since first exposure. While data on this variable were not presented explicitly, one might predict that if the high mortality appeared only after a very long induction period, the largest mortality ratios should appear in the oldest men. This was not the case. (Table 5, 1986; Table 3, Supplement);

- (c) Time since retired from mining. If the size of the increased risk associated with underground gold mining was to wane with increasing time following retirement, it might be predicted that there would be little excess risk observed in the very oldest men. However, there was evidence of an increased risk of lung cancer in older men, (Table 5, 1986; Table 5, Supplement);
- (d) Type of contaminant present. The distribution of type of contaminant (silica, fibers, arsenic, sulfides) to which the miners were exposed was quite similar between cases of lung cancer and a random sample of other miners chosen as controls (Table 12, 1986), though the mean numbers of years with high dust exposure was substantially greater for cases than controls.

What did tend to predict an increased mortality rate from lung cancer was the time period during which a man was employed as an underground gold miner. Specifically, the increased risk was almost entirely confined to those who spent any time in gold mines prior to 1945 (Table P-1).

The actual duration of employment prior to 1945, however, did not seem to further influence the size of the increased risk. (Table P-2). This was so even if the duration of exposure to mining prior to 1945 was short (20 months or less). It should be noted that in Tables P-1 and P-2 (and in most of our subsequent derived tables) we have chosen to present data from gold miners and "mixed ore" miners who mined gold underground combined. This is because for almost every issue examined the experience is relation to lung cancer for gold and "mixed ore" miners who mined gold underground was similar. We also suspect that given the pattern of employment in the mining industry, most "mixed ore" miners started their mining experience in a gold mine.

Among those men who worked as underground miners prior to 1945, the presence of chest x-ray abnormalities suggesting silicosis was associated with a particularly high lung cancer mortality rate, but not for those who commenced mining in 1945 or later (Table P-3). However, there were very few person years of experience for those with silicosis who commenced mining in 1945 or later. Further, irrespective of x-ray category, there was no significant excess of lung cancer for those who commenced gold mining in 1945 or later.

The data suggest that underground mining probably acted to cause some of the men in the study first employed before 1945 to die from lung cancer. Support for this inference comes from the following:

- (a) The size of the increased mortality rate was considerable, and the increase is highly unlikely to be due to chance. It is also unlikely that much, if any, of this increase was related to confounding by a non-occupational factor such as cigarette smoking. Furthermore, the size of the increased mortality was highest in the groups of miners in whom it might have been predicted to be highest: Men exposed to the dustiest conditions (such as existed prior to the mid-1940's); and men with chest x-ray evidence of heavy exposure to dust, (i.e., men with x-rays rated Ontario x-ray code 4 or more);

- (b) While there are some studies in which underground miners and/or soliticotics did not have an elevated death rate from lung cancer, most have found similar results to the present one (we discuss the positive and negative studies in more detail below). This argues that the association seen in the Ontario miners is less likely to be due to bias. More likely, the different findings among the various studies reflect variation in the environmental conditions within the mines in which the study subjects had been employed.

Nevertheless, for the great majority of miners in the study who developed lung cancer, it is more probable than not that they would have developed it even if they had not been employed as an underground gold miner. This results from the fact that for most gold miners the "baseline" risk exceeded the added risk associated with their underground mining experience. The statistic that best describes this is the attributable risk percent, defined as the excess numbers of deaths in any category, divided by the numbers that occurred in that category, multiplied by 100 [or (Observed deaths - Expected deaths) / Observed deaths \times 100]. For those first employed prior to 1945, the attributable risk percent was 25% for those with A x-ray rating (Ontario X-ray Code less than 4), 50% for those with B rating (Ontario X-ray Code 4) and 59% for those with C rating (Ontario X-ray Code greater than 4). Thus, only in those gold miners with lung cancer who first worked prior to 1945 and who had evidence on x-ray of severe dust exposure (i.e. Ontario X-ray Code 4 or more) had a probability of 50% or more that their cancer was mining related.

We have endeavoured to ascertain whether there is a sub-group of those with no x-ray evidence of silicosis among whom there might be a greater excess of risk of lung cancer. Table P-4 provides one result of this process. However, as for the total group of miners first employed prior to 1945 (Table P-2) there is no evidence that prolonged employment prior to 1945 conferred any greater risk than shorter employment. We also sought evidence for a different effect at different ages (Table P-5). This suggests an effect restricted to those under the age of 65, but only among those aged less than 50, is the attributable risk percent greater than 50%. However, this is based on small numbers, and the excess is not significant (χ^2 2.976, 95%, C.I., 85-348). Table P-5 also addresses the potential influence of age among those first employed in 1945 or later. The only excess is seen in those age 50-64, but the excess could quite easily have been due to change (χ^2 2.356, 95% confidence intervals 94-174). Even if this excess were real, the attributable risk percent would be only 25%, so that a lung cancer in a man in this category would most likely have occurred in any event.

In Table P-6 we display data relating mortality from lung cancer to time since first commencing gold mining (latent-period effects). For those first employed prior to 1945, the data do not permit determining when the excess first became manifest after entering employment. However, the data suggest that after 14 years from first employment the excess risk persists at approximately the same level.

For those first employed 1945 or later, no excess occurred except possibly 15-19 years after first employment. However, this excess is not statistically significant, (χ^2 = 1.809), and even if real, the attributable risk percent is only 30%.

II. Cancer of the Stomach

Among the gold and mixed ore miners who ever mined gold, 66 deaths from stomach cancer occurred, in contrast to 48.5 expected, SMR 136, (Table 7, Supplement 1 revised). Some of this 36% excess risk is due to an over-representation (relative to the population of Canada used as a basis for comparison) of men not born in North America in the mining industry. (On page 48 of the 1986 report, the SMRs for Canadian and non-Canadian-born men both lie below the overall SMR that does not control for country of birth.) This bias is probably similar in size to a bias working in the opposite direction, the "healthy worker" effect. Since cigarette smoking is at most a weak risk factor for cancer of the stomach, any differences between the miners and the comparison population in terms of smoking habits are probably unimportant here.

While the 36% increase in the rate of stomach cancer among the gold and mixed ore miners could be an indication that their occupation played a causal role in the development of some of these cancers, there are reasons to be skeptical of a causal relationship:

- (a) Those with the heaviest exposures to dust, i.e. those who worked in the mines prior to 1945, had only a slight and non-significant increased mortality from stomach cancer. (Table P-7). Even among those with silicosis (Ontario X-ray Code 4 or more) the excess was small;
- (b) In contrast to the situation for lung cancer, in which both gold and mixed ore miners experienced the increase in risk, mixed ore miners had no increased mortality from stomach cancer. This was true irrespective of year of first employment (Table 7, Supplement, revised);
- (c) The gold miners had an exceedingly low mortality rate from colo-rectal cancer (27 observed, 55.7 expected, SMR 48, Table 1, 1986). A similarly low risk was probably present in the mixed ore miners as well (see 1983 report). Such a deficit of deaths considerably exceeds that which could result from the "healthy worker" effect. Since it probably does not represent a true health benefit associated with mining, it could be an indication of some unusual characteristics of the men who chose to be miners above and beyond that explained by their distribution of national origin, or it could reflect errors of cause of death certification. Either of these last two explanations casts doubt as to the causal nature of the increased risk for stomach cancer associated with gold mining;

- (d) In most other studies of death rates among gold miners, there has not been an increase in mortality from stomach cancer. While this is not incompatible with these being a true increased risk in the Ontario gold mines, neither does it offer independent support of such a relationship. (See section below).

Review of Relevant Literature

In this section we discuss a number of reports that provide information that could help in interpreting the findings in Ontario miners with gold mining experience. Where appropriate we will make comparison with the data from the Ontario miners.

Armstrong et al, (1979) conducted a study of a cohort of 1,974 gold miners and 213 coal miners. These were followed for thirteen to fourteen years. Lung cancer mortality was relatively high in the gold miners (59 deaths observed, 40.8 expected, SMR 145) but weakly and inconclusively related to the extent of their underground mining experience. This is somewhat similar to the experience in Ontario gold miners. However, the authors concluded that cigarette smoking may explain the excess of lung cancer in the gold miners studied because the prevalence of smoking in the gold miners was higher than in the coal miners, or in other men in Western Australia. There was no indication of excess risk of lung cancer in those with radiologic evidence of silicosis.

Hessel et al, (1986) conducted a case control study to assess the association between lung cancer and silicosis or silica dust exposure in white South African gold miners. Two controls were matched to each case by year of birth and by smoking. Controls were selected from the same group of deaths that produced the cases, 133 matched triplets were studied. There was no evidence of increased risk of lung cancer associated with radiological silicosis, though some in relation to parenchymal silicosis at autopsy. However, with the groups identified by having silicosis at either radiology or autopsy, there was an inverse association between lung cancer risk and increasing estimated levels of dust exposure.

Brown et al (1986) conducted a historical cohort study of 3,329 gold miners who worked underground at least 1 year between 1940 and 1965 in a mine in South Dakota, U.S.A. Vital status was determined as of June 1, 1977. Forty-three deaths from lung cancer were observed, for an SMR of 100 (95% CI 73-135). The SMR was 125 (61-229) for those first employed before 1930, but subsequently no group showed any indication of increase in risk. Also analyses by length of employment or estimated dust exposure and latency showed no increased risk, except for those first employed 35-39 years ago (SMR 162, 85-239). Complicating the interpretation of this study is the fact that the mortality rate from lung cancer in the male South Dakota population, was substantially below that of the U.S. male population, the group used as a basis for comparison. Had the South Dakota rates been used instead, the overall SMR for the gold miners would have been about 160.

Katsnelson and Mokronosova (1979), however, produced somewhat different findings from the Soviet Union. In their study, primarily designed to evaluate the risk of lung cancer among those exposed to non-fibrous mineral dusts, a relative risk of 7.9 for male underground workers of a gold mine is cited. When workers with silicosis were excluded, the relative risk fell to 3.1 but was still significantly elevated. The relative risk for surface workers of a gold mine was 1.6. The authors contrast the risk of death from lung cancer with workers occupied in mining and processing talc where the relative risk was 4.5. For workers in dinas and fire clay plants, the relative risk was also elevated.

It would seem, therefore, that experience in other countries with gold mining is not totally consistent with the findings in Ontario miners. No increased risk was found in the study of South African miners, and the excess risk in Western Australian miners was attributed largely to cigarette smoking. Cigarette smoking was not considered in the studies in South Dakota or in the Soviet Union.

Three of these studies also provide data on stomach cancer. In the study in Western Australia (Armstrong et al, 1979) there were 4 observed deaths from stomach cancer in gold miners compared to 9.8 expected (SMR 41). Thus there was a deficit of mortality from stomach cancer. Interestingly for colo-rectal cancer the observed was 9 compared to 11.0 expected (SMR 82). Similarly in the study in the USA (Brown et al, 1986) the SMR for stomach cancer was 57 (based on 5 observed deaths) while that for colo-rectal cancer was 91 (based on 16 deaths). In the study in the Soviet Union, however, the relative risk for underground workers of a gold mine was 5.7, falling only slightly to 4.4 if silicotic patients were excluded. There was no elevated risk for surface workers of a gold mine or workers of a dinas plant, but there was excess for workers occupied in mining and processing talc and those employed in fire clay plants. No data were provided, however, on risk of deaths from other gastrointestinal tumors.

The question as to whether or not silicosis in the absence of gold mining exposure increases the risk of lung cancer is controversial (Heppleston, 1985). However, in addition to the study in the Soviet Union reports on elevated risk of lung cancer among silicotics have come from several countries and from Ontario. Lynge et al, (1986) linked census populations characterized by job title to mortality files in Norway and Finland and incidence data in Denmark and Sweden. An excess risk of lung cancer was found for foundry workers and Swedish iron ore miners (already recognized in other studies) and a possible increase in risk in Finnish and Danish stone cutters who were believed not exposed to other carcinogens. There was some suggestion from the stone cutters of silica increasing lung cancer risk, but this was not conclusive. There were no data on gold miners.

Forastiere et al (1986) studied 72 cases of lung cancer and 314 deceased referents from an area of central Italy where the ceramic industry had a long tradition. By linking to a file maintained by the Italian Institute for Compensation of Occupational Diseases, it was determined that 33 cases and 104 referents were ceramic workers and that 15 and 25, respectively, were silicotics. The relative risk for ceramic workers was 2.9 (95% C.I. 1.1-3.5) and that for ceramic workers with silicosis 3.9 (1.8-8.3). The latter relative risk was unchanged after controlling for cigarette smoking.

In a study of 1026 granite workers hired between 1940 and 1971 and followed to the end of 1981, 22 lung cancer deaths were observed, 17.1 being expected from the Finnish male population (SMR 129, 95% C.I. 104-153) (Koskela et al, 1987). No lung cancer deaths occurred in the first 10 years of follow up (4.3 were expected) and only 1 from 10 to 14.9 years (3.3. expected). For 15 or more years since entry into granite work, there were 21 lung cancer deaths with 9.5 expected (SMR 221, 189-254). Silicosis was not very common in this cohort, and only one lung cancer patient had silicosis (the total with silicosis was not reported). Smoking was not explicitly considered in the analysis, though a survey found similar smoking habits to that of other Finnish industrial male workers.

Zambon et al (1987) followed to 1984 a cohort of 1313 workers compensated for silicosis during 1959-1963 in Italy. An SMR of 239 (95% C.I. 186-302) for lung cancer was found, with increasing risk for years since first exposure. No lung cancer deaths occurred in the first 20 years from first exposure (though only 1.3 deaths from lung cancer were expected). For 20-29 years from first exposure the SMR was 131 (53-272), for 30-39 years 250 (163-366) and for 40 or more years 300 (212-415). There was no indication if increasing risk with increasing duration of exposure for smokers of 10 or more cigarettes daily, but there was increasing risk with increasing duration of exposure for non and light cigarette smokers.

In a study of 2055 pottery workers (Thomas & Stewart, 1987) an SMR for lung cancer of 137 was noted for men exposed to silica but not talc (95% C.I. 109-164). For men exposed to silica and non-fibrous talc the SMR was 254 (95% C.I. 218-289).

A study of 961 silicotics from Finland (Kurppa et al, 1986) showed an SMR of 312 (99% CI 230-414). For the mining sub-cohort the SMR was 436 (264-670). The type of mining was not specified. In Sweden, a study of 284 silicotics employed in mining quarrying and tunneling showed an SMR of 538, while for 428 whose occupation was in iron and steel foundries, the SMR was 385 (Westerholm et al, 1986). In Switzerland, the causes of death of 2,399 silicotics was studied (Schuler and Ruttnar, 1986). SMRs could not be determined, but the mortality odds ratio (using non-pulmonary cancers as the reference) was 241. In an earlier report of the study of Zambon et al (1987) in Italy, 1,234 silicotics were followed. (Zambon et al, 1986). The SMR for lung cancer with 228 (95% CI 169-302) but for stomach cancer only 67 (32-123). In miners the SMR for lung cancer was 156 (68-871). In this analysis the effect of smoking was also evaluated, and the excess lung cancer mortality appeared to be restricted to current or ex-smokers. A study in Austria of 1,630 workers exposed to dust including silica showed increased mortality for both lung and stomach cancer (SMRs 148 and 161, respectively) (Neuberger et al, 1986).

The studies summarized in the previous paragraph were all reported at a symposium held in April 1984 on Silica, Silicosis and Cancer. They do not comprise a complete review of the literature (which we have not attempted for this topic). Indeed it seems possible that the authors were selected for presentation at the meeting as it was known they had "positive" studies. (The Ontario study of Finkelstein et al, 1986, was also presented, but this is reviewed in more detail below). Nevertheless there does seem to be emerging evidence to support an increased risk of lung (but not necessarily stomach) cancer in silicotics (Greenberg, 1986). Indeed some experimental evidence for the carcinogenicity of silica was presented at the same meeting (Niemeier et al, 1986; Saffiotti, 1986). The possible confounding effect of cigarette smoking was not fully addressed, though Goldsmith and Guidotti (1986) postulated a synergistic effect of combined silica exposure and cigarette smoking.

In the study of Finkelstein et al, (1986) 1,119 men receiving Workers' Compensation Awards for silicosis in Ontario since 1940 had been studied up to mid 1985. Increased mortality was found from lung cancer and stomach cancer, the SMR being 230 and 188 respectively. Adjustment for smoking and country of origin did not explain the excesses observed. It was noted that deaths from colonic and rectal cancers were fewer than expected so that overall GI cancer rates were not elevated. The workers were characterized according to the year they were first compensated for silicosis. The excess of lung cancer was noted in all those first compensated up to and including 1969, though for those first compensated 1960-69 the mortality excess for lung cancer did not occur until the experience in the follow-up period. 1979-85 was included. So far no excess in those first compensated in 1970-75 has been noted. For stomach cancer on the other hand the excess was largely restricted to those first compensated 1940-49 with mortality experience included up to the end of 1978. Thus in this group the excess for stomach cancer occurred largely in those whose first employment was almost certainly prior to 1945, no excess having occurred in those first employed in 1945 or subsequently. This is the reverse of the finding of the Ontario gold miners. This is of interest because there is likely to be some overlap between the cohort studies and the Ontario gold miners cohort.

This study also included a small group of surface workers with silicosis in whom a consistent excess of lung cancer was noted and also an excess of stomach cancer in all those first compensated up to 1969.

Following a review of most of the foregoing studies, an IARC working group recently concluded that there is limited evidence for the carcinogenicity of crystalline silica to humans and sufficient evidence for the carcinogenicity of crystalline silica to experimental animals (IARC, 1987).

Conclusion and Recommendations

1. In this section we return to our terms of reference as set out in the Introduction to our report and attempt to answer each question in turn.

Our opinion on the association between experience in Ontario gold mines and excess mortality from lung cancer.

The question we have been seeking to address is whether the association noted, which is undoubtedly not due to chance, could be regarded as causal. We shall address this issue in relation to the criteria generally accepted for determining causality of an association in which as in the present case, change appears to have been ruled out as an explanation.

These criteria include strength of the association, consistency, whether or not a dose response relationship can be demonstrated, whether or not negative or positive confounding have been considered and ruled out and the biological plausibility of the association.

Strength: The association is not particularly strong, even when sub-groups are examined. However, it is not out of range with other associations which have been accepted as causal under other circumstances related to occupation and lung cancer.

Sir Richard Doll, in his commentary produced for the Ontario Mining Association, noted the lack of an apparent excess of malignancies generally in this cohort, and suggested that mis-diagnosis of secondary tumors as primary lung cancer, particularly in those who had radiologic evidence of silicosis, might have been responsible for the elevated SMR. Dr. Muller has addressed this issue in his notes on the brief presented to the Industrial Disease Standards Panel by the Ontario Mining Association and we are satisfied that the data available provide strong evidence against such a bias operating.

Consistency: There is little evidence on cancer in gold miners and this, as we have reviewed elsewhere in this report, is not entirely consistent. There is possibly greater evidence for consistency in the suggestion from this study that risk of lung cancer is found in those who have radiologic evidence of silicosis.

Dose response relationships: We have sought and not observed dose response relationships except insofar as gradients of risk have been noted in terms of year of first employment, the earlier the year the greater the risk, and for radiologic evidence of silicosis, the greater the degree of evidence the greater the risk. Both observations are consistent with the inference that higher exposure to dust (which may or may not have been indirectly associated with a separate causal carcinogen) resulted in a greater degree of risk.

Confounding: The most obvious potential confounder is cigarette smoking and we have concluded that this is unlikely to be a critical confounder in this study. This conclusion is based on the analyses in the 1986 report which appears to satisfactorily address this issue. Although some minor residual confounding may be present, theoretical considerations suggest that this could not explain the elevated risks in some sub-groups. (Blair et al, 1985).

Under the heading of confounding it is important to consider two issues raised by external critics of the 1986 report. The Ontario Mining Association raised the issue of the appropriateness of the general population of Ontario for the calculation of expected numbers of deaths. We believe that the extent of the differences in cancer mortality by county between Northern and Southern Ontario counties documented by them in their commentary is too small for this to be an important consideration. Similarly the issue of negative confounding by the "Healthy Worker Effect" raised by the United Steelworkers of America is relatively unimportant in relation to lung or gastric cancer, and is unlikely to have obscured (or seriously minimized) an important effect.

Biologic plausibility: Of the various substances to which gold miners are known to be exposed, gold in its native form in gold mines is unlikely to be a carcinogen. There is no evidence from non-epidemiologic studies that gold salts are carcinogenic. However, we have no evidence that other known physical or chemical carcinogens are present in the gold mines to a greater extent than in, say, nickel mines where no excess lung cancer has been observed. We speculate that increased risk may have been related to a relatively brief exposure to a strong carcinogen which was infrequent but for which the likelihood of exposure was increased under circumstances of work in the industry prior to 1945 and heavy duty exposure sufficient to induce silicosis.

Until recently, the pathologic significance of crystalline silica particles has been limited to their etiologic role in the development of pulmonary fibrosis and diffuse interstitial constrictive lung disease (silicosis). New experimental studies involving rodents have identified that protracted inhalation of silica particles leads also to epithelial hyperplasia and severe dysplasia, followed by the development of squamous cell carcinoma and more rarely, adenocarcinoma of the lung (Niemeier et al, 1986; Saffiotti, 1986). Since similar lung neoplasms were obtained in experiments in which pure silica particles were administered, as well as in those utilizing commercial mineral slag samples which contained silica particles, it seems reasonable to conclude that silica particles per se are probably carcinogenic for the lung. Although the mechanism remains to be unequivocally established, the fact that a major component of the inflammatory reaction of the lung involves monocytes and macrophages suggests a possible clue. Current research indicates that in the activated state such cells generate significant levels of superoxide (O_2^-) and other oxygen free radical intermediates (Weitman et al, 1985). These free radicals are highly reactive and can damage the DNA of adjacent non-transformed fibroblasts causing them to undergo transformation to the malignant state. Thus, while we cannot precisely identify the carcinogen involved in the induction of lung cancer in the gold miners, it is possible from the experimental evidence currently in hand, that silica may have been responsible for some or all of the increased risk of lung cancer.

On the basis of these criteria taken as a whole, we conclude that the evidence is sufficiently strong to regard the association between work in Ontario gold mines and lung cancer as causal. However, there are certain restrictions on this which we address in the following section.

2. Our advice on the criteria to be considered for the compensation of gold miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer.

Our advice on this issue relates to the data derived from the 1986 study and general experience on the effect of carcinogens in inducing lung cancer.

The most important general consideration is whether or not compensation should be offered to all those with mining experience in an Ontario gold mine if they subsequently develop lung cancer. We conclude that this would be inappropriate as it is clear from the evidence from the 1986 study that a substantial proportion of lung cancers would have occurred in the absence of occupational exposure to gold mining. Where relevant we have made estimates of the proportion attributable to gold mining and in only a few sub-groups does this proportion exceed 50%.

Under circumstances where proportional compensation is not offered it would generally be expected that compensation should be made available to those for whom the probability that disease would have occurred because of gold mining is greater than an even chance. This would require the attributable risk percent to be more than 50%. We have sought to identify the sub-groups in the 1986 study who comply with this criterion, and have identified only men who were first employed prior to 1945 and who subsequently had a chest x-ray rating of Ontario Chest X-ray Code 4 or more.

An additional requirement would normally be applied under circumstances of Workers' Compensation, consistent with biological knowledge on carcinogenicity. This is that the time of first exposure should be a minimum number of years prior to the diagnosis of lung cancer. The data available from the 1986 study which provide guidance on this point are to be found in Table P-6, and these are sparse. However, from other studies we conclude that the normally anticipated "latent period" for induction of lung cancer is fifteen years or more. Nevertheless in accordance with the request that we should wherever appropriate "give the benefit of doubt", we would accept a minimum period of 10 years.

We, therefore, recommend that Ontario gold miners first employed prior to 1945 who developed lung cancer a minimum of 10 years following entry to a gold mine and whose x-rays were rated by the Ontario X-ray Code 4 or more be granted compensation.

We have endeavoured to identify other sub-groups among those excluded from these categories (those with an Ontario X-ray Code of less than 4, first employed before 1945 and those first employed 1945 and after) whose degree of risk might be such as to justify consideration for compensation. We have considered age at diagnosis of lung cancer, period of exposure to gold mining prior to 1945 and time since first employment to death. We have been unable to demonstrate any sub-groups with sufficiently increased risk to justify compensation.

However, we recommend that the question of compensation in those categories currently excluded be reconsidered from time to time especially with regard to those first employed in 1945 or after, as it is possible that continuing follow-up coinciding with continual increase in time from first employment would eventually demonstrate a significantly increased risk of lung cancer.

3. We have considered the criteria that the WCB should employ to compensate mixed ore miners who have subsequently developed lung cancer.

We recommend that identical criteria be applied to mixed ore miners with lung cancer who had a definite history of full-time underground mining prior to 1945 and whose x-rays were rated by the Ontario X-ray Code 4 or more, as for gold miners.

4. We were asked whether there exists sufficient evidence for the WCB to provide compensation benefits to gold or mixed ore miners who have subsequently contracted stomach cancer.

We have concluded that sufficient evidence does not exist to provide compensation. We have commented on the unusual features of the sub-groups at increased risk and postulated that at least some of the apparent excess could be due to mis-diagnosis of cancer of other gastrointestinal sites.

We, therefore, recommend that a special study be undertaken of the evidence for the death certificate diagnosis for those gold or mixed ore miners who have been certified as dying of a gastrointestinal cancer. However, even if a diagnostic artifact were to be ruled out we would still have difficulty in making an inference of cause and effect based upon the observed association. We note no excess risk of stomach cancer in mixed ore miners and that the observed excess occurs in a group (1945 or later employees) contrary to expectation and to experience in other circumstances (i.e. those compensated in Ontario for silicosis). We believe that the association is probably non-causal, but would be prepared to readdress the issue if further evidence is forthcoming.

RESIDENTIAL RENT REGULATION ACT, 1986

O. Reg. 234/87.

Rent Registry.

Made—April 30th, 1987.

Filed—April 30th, 1987.

REGULATION TO AMEND ONTARIO REGULATION 10/87 MADE UNDER THE RESIDENTIAL RENT REGULATION ACT, 1986

1.—(1) Subsection 2 (1) of Ontario Regulation 10/87 is amended by striking out “and” at the end of clause (b), by adding “and” at the end of clause (c) and by adding thereto the following clause:

(d) where the residential complex is not serviced by door-to-door mail delivery or the address of the tenant is a rural route number, highway number or similar address, a list of the names and mailing addresses for each tenant. O. Reg. 10/87, s. 2 (1); O. Reg. 234/87, s. 1 (1).

(2) Subsection 2 (3) of the said Regulation is amended by adding at the end thereof “unless the increased rent has been set out in Form 2R filed by the landlord”.

(3) Section 2 of the said Regulation is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

(4a) Where the landlord files a copy of a tenancy agreement under subsection (4) and the agreement contains pre-printed and unaltered pages common to all of those tenancy agreements to which subsection 2 (3) of the Act applies and which are in respect of rental units in the residential complex, the landlord may so certify and need only file one copy of the pre-printed and unaltered pages. O. Reg. 234/87, s. 1 (3).

2. Section 4 of the said Regulation is revoked and the following substituted therefor:

4.—(1) For the purposes of section 54 of the Act, “actual rent” shall be determined as of the actual rent date in accordance with this section.

(2) In this section,

“member of the family” has the same meaning as in section 1 of Ontario Regulation 93/87;

“prompt payment provision” means a provision in a tenancy agreement which states that if a rent payment is made on or before the due date or within a specified period thereafter, a lesser amount of money will be chargeable;

“value of any discount” means the cost to the landlord of the discount or the benefit in the nature of a discount, including lost revenue experienced by the landlord.

(3) Actual rent does not include,

(a) abatements of rent ordered by a court that reduce the rent actually paid in the rental period; and

(b) the amounts referred to in clause 100 (1) (a) or (b) of the Act.

(4) If the landlord submits Form 5R in respect of a rental unit the actual rent shall be deemed to be the amount of the rent charged as a result of the rent reduction less any statutory rent increases that were permissible between the actual rent date and the date of the rent reduction.

(5) If the rent chargeable under the terms of a tenancy agreement is subject to a prompt payment provision, the actual rent is the lesser amount chargeable, unless,

(a) the rent set out or declared as the lawful or maximum rent in the most recent order issued under the Act, the Residential Tenancies Act or the Residential Premises Rent Review Act, 1975 (2nd Session) is the higher amount chargeable; or

(b) the rental unit was rented before the 1st day of February, 1987 and the rent chargeable since,

(i) the 29th day of July, 1975, or

(ii) the first date that the rental unit is rented after the 29th day of July, 1975, has been continuously subject to a comparable prompt payment provision.

(6) Prompt payment provisions are comparable if the ratio of the lesser amount chargeable thereunder to the higher amount as of the later date is the same as or greater than the ratio of the lesser amount to the higher rent as of the earlier date.

(7) Where,

(a) the actual rent date is not the date that the rental unit is rented for the first time; and

(b) the rent charged is affected by a discount, benefit in the nature of a discount or discounted rent within the term of a tenancy agreement in effect upon the date on which the actual rent is first charged, the actual rent is the total rent charged for the twelve months following the date on which the actual rent is first charged, less the value of any discounts paid, given or allowed during those twelve months, divided by the number of rental periods in those twelve months.

(8) If the rental unit is rented as of the actual rent date to a superintendent, employee or a member of the family of the landlord, the actual rent is the rent set out in the most recent order made under the Act, the Residential Premises Rent Review Act, 1975 (2nd Session) or the Residential Tenancies Act, plus all statutory rent increases permitted between the effective date of the rent increase set out in the order and the actual rent date or, if there is no prior order respecting the rental unit,

(a) the actual rent is the earliest known rent since the 29th day of July, 1975 charged to a person who is not a superintendent, employee or a member of the family of the landlord, plus all statutory rent increases permitted between the effective date of rent increase of the rent so determined and the actual rent date;

(b) if the actual rent cannot be determined under clause (a), the actual rent is equal to the average of the rents for all similar rental units in the residential complex or, if there is no similar rental unit in the residential complex, a rent which is reasonable having regard to the rents for other rental units therein; or

(c) if the actual rent cannot be determined under clause (a) or (b), the actual rent is an amount that is comparable to rents being charged for similar rental units within the same geographical vicinity.

(9) Subsections (10) to (15) apply to a rental unit where,

(a) the unit is "rented for the first time" within the meaning of section 99 of the Act; and

(b) the date of first rental is the same as the actual rent date.

(10) Where a tenancy agreement commences on the actual rent date and the rent charged is affected by a provision allowing for a discount, benefit in the nature of a discount or discounted rent paid, given or allowed during the term of the agreement, the actual rent is,

(a) where subsection (11) applies, the amount stated to be chargeable as the undiscounted rent as of the actual rent date in a written tenancy agreement commencing on the actual rent date;

(b) where subsection (12) applies and the term of the tenancy agreement is twelve months or less, the total rent charged for the twelve months following the actual rent date, less the value of any discounts paid, given or allowed, divided by the number of rental periods in those twelve months; or

(c) where subsection (12) applies and the term is more than twelve months, the total rent charged during the term, less the value of any discounts paid, given or allowed, divided by the number of rental periods in the term.

(11) Clause (10) (a) applies where,

(a) the actual rent date is before the 1st day of February, 1987; or

(b) the discounts, benefits in the nature of a discount or discounted rent paid, given or allowed during the term of the agreement,

(i) are in respect of the incompleteness of construction of the residential complex or temporary failure to provide promised services or facilities and do not extend beyond the six-month period commencing upon the date that any rental unit in the residential complex is first occupied, or

(ii) are in respect of the marketing of the first rental of rental units in the residential complex and,

(A) do not exceed two months rent, as averaged over the term of the tenancy agreement, or

(B) are not paid, given or allowed to the tenant over a period of time that exceeds a total of six months, that need not be consecutive.

(12) Clause 10 (b) or (c) applies where the actual rent date is on or after the 1st day of February, 1987 and the discounts, benefits in the nature of discounts or discounted rent paid, given or allowed to the tenant,

(a) are in respect of the incompleteness of construction of the residential complex or temporary failure to provide promised services or facilities and extend beyond the six-month period commencing upon the date that any rental unit in the residential complex is first occupied;

(b) are in respect of the marketing of the first rental of rental units in the residential complex and,

(i) exceed two months rent, as averaged over the term of the tenancy agreement, or

- (ii) are paid, given or allowed to the tenant over a period of time that exceeds a total of six months, that need not be consecutive; or

- (c) are in respect of any other discount, benefit in the nature of a discount or discounted rent.

(13) Where a tenancy agreement commences on the actual rent date and the agreement provides that the amount of rent charged will decrease at any time during the term of the agreement from that charged on the actual rent date, which decrease is not in the nature of a discount, benefit in the nature of a discount or discounted rent, the actual rent is,

- (a) where the term of the tenancy agreement is twelve months or less, the total rent charged for the twelve months following the actual rent date, divided by the number of rental periods in those twelve months; or

- (b) where the term is more than twelve months, the total rent charged during the term, divided by the number of rental periods in the term.

(14) If, after the expiry of the rental periods referred to in subsection (7), clause (10) (b) or (c) or subsection (13), the actual rent determined thereunder is different from the actual rent set out in Form 2R filed, the landlord shall file an amended Form 2R within ninety days following the expiry of the rental periods referred to in subsection (7), clause (10) (b) or (c) or subsection (13).

(15) Notwithstanding subsections (10) to (12), where the rent for a rental unit is discounted as of the actual rent date according to the provisions of a written tenancy agreement commencing on the actual rent date as the result of a provision in an agreement between the landlord and a municipality entered into to secure approval of an application by the landlord under the Rental Housing Protection Act, 1986, the actual rent is the amount stated in the tenancy agreement to be chargeable as the undiscounted rent as of the actual rent date.

(16) If an order of the Residential Tenancy Commission, the Minister, the Board or a court determines the actual rent or the maximum rent or lawful rent as of the actual rent date, the actual rent shall be the rent set out in the order and not as determined under this section. O. Reg. 234/87, s. 2.

3. Section 5 of the said Regulation is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

- (3) The request referred to in subsection (2) or subsection 6 (3) shall be in Form 7R. O. Reg. 234/87, s. 3.

4.—(1) Subsection 9 (3) of the said Regulation is amended by inserting after “subsection (2)” in the first line “and has filed a statement within the time permitted under section 57 of the Act”.

(2) Section 9 of the said Regulation is amended by adding thereto the following subsections:

(5) Where the landlord has filed an incomplete registration statement and notices under section 60 of the Act have not been given, the Minister may make enquiries to obtain the required information and may record it in the rent registry.

(6) The Minister may record in the rent registry any portion of the registration statement that is correct, notwithstanding that other portions of the statement are incorrect or incomplete. O. Reg. 234/87, s. 4 (2).

5. Subsection 10 (2) of the said Regulation is amended by striking out “completed” in the second line.

6. Subsection 11 (2) of the said Regulation is amended by striking out “completed” in the second line.

7. Section 13 of the said Regulation is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

(6) Subsection (4) does not apply if the clerical error or omission is in respect of,

- (a) an order issued by the Minister, the Board, the Residential Tenancy Commission or a court and recorded in the registry under section 69 of the Act; or

- (b) a relevant change recorded by the Minister under section 15, if the notices under section 60 of the Act have been sent to the landlord and to the tenant. O. Reg. 234/87, s. 7.

8.—(1) Subsection 15 (2) of the said Regulation is revoked and the following substituted therefor:

(2) The tenant may notify the Minister in writing of any proposed relevant change to the information recorded in the rent registry.

LANDLORD NOTIFICATION

IMPORTANT NOTICE OF INFORMATION RECORDED IN THE REGISTRY
(given under Section 60 of the Act)

You or your agent have filed a registration statement with the Rent Registry.

This Notification provides you with the information which was set out in your statement, and is now recorded in the Registry pertaining to the rental units in the residential complex.

Attached Schedules

On the Unit Listings (Schedule "A") attached, the "Actual Rent" set out on your Unit Form has been printed. The Actual Rent is the rent that was actually charged on the "actual rent date" - July 1, 1985, or if the unit was not rented on July 1, 1985, the date that the unit was first rented after that date.

If you filed "special forms" (Forms 3R, 4R or 5R) for any of the rental units in the complex, the following Schedules will be attached to this Notification:

Long-term Tenancy Agreements (Schedule "B");
July, 1985 Increases (Schedule "C"); and/or Reduced Rents (Schedule "C").

Based on the information you filed, and applicable rent review orders, if any, the "Current Maximum Rent" shown on the Unit Listings (Schedule "A") was calculated. The Current Maximum Rent may also be subject to a pending application filed by a landlord or tenant.

Disputing the Information in this Notification

If you wish to: a) request that any information in this Notification or any of the Schedules or Unit Listings be amended or corrected; or

b) apply for an order declaring that the Actual Rent(s) for a rental unit(s) is the legal maximum rent as of the actual rent date, you must do so by filing an Application (Form 6R) under Section 61 of the Act with the local Rent Review office before the "Application Deadline" shown on the Schedule "A" Unit Listings.

If you do not file an Application respecting a rental unit before the Application Deadline, and the information in this Notification is not otherwise challenged by that date, the Actual Rent for the rental unit will be deemed the legal maximum rent as of the Actual Rent Date.

Post-1975 Buildings

If no part of the building was occupied as a rental unit before January 1, 1976, the Current Maximum Rent shown in Schedule "A" may be less than the rent currently charged for the unit. Such buildings were exempt from rent regulation until August 1, 1985. The landlord had the right, until March 2, 1987, to make application(s) retroactively for approval of the rent increases taken on or after August 1, 1985.

For Further Information

If you have any questions about this Notification, or if you wish to file an Application, please contact the local office, at the address and telephone number shown on the attached Schedule "A".

Residential Rent Regulation Act, 1986

TENANT NOTIFICATIONIMPORTANT NOTICE OF INFORMATION RECORDED IN THE REGISTRY
(given under Section 60 of the Act)

Your landlord has filed a registration statement with the Rent Registry. This statement included information concerning your rental unit which has now been recorded in the Registry.

This Notification provides you with the information recorded in the Registry pertaining to your rental unit.

Attached Schedules

On Schedule "A" attached, the "Actual Rent" filed by the landlord is shown. The "Actual Rent" is the rent that was actually charged on the "actual rent date" -- July 1, 1985 -- or if the unit was not rented on July 1, 1985, the date that the unit was first rented after that date. There are special circumstances in which the "Actual Rent" would be defined differently.

If the landlord filed certain additional information, the following Schedules will be attached to this Notification:

- * Long-term Tenancy Agreement (Schedule "B");
- * July, 1985 Increase (Schedule "C"); and/or
- * Reduced Rent (Schedule "C").

Based on the information filed, the Rent Registry has calculated the "Current Maximum Rent" for the unit, which appears on Schedule "A".

Disputing the Information in this Notification

- If you wish to:
- a) request that any information in this Notification or any of the Schedules be amended or corrected; or
 - b) dispute the legality of the Actual Rent (separate from any rebate application that you might file), you must do so by filing an Application (Form 6R) under Section 61 of the Act with the local Rent Review office before the "Application Deadline" shown on the attached Schedule "A". The landlord may be able to raise cost justification in response to your application to assert the legality of the "Actual Rent".

If you do not file an Application before the "Application Deadline", and the information in this Notification is not otherwise challenged by that date, the Actual Rent will be deemed the legal maximum rent as of the Actual Rent Date. Your time for questioning the lawfulness of the Actual Rent may also be affected by a current application brought by the landlord.

Post-1975 Buildings

If your unit is in a building no part of which was occupied as a rental unit before January 1, 1976, the Current Maximum Rent shown on Schedule "A" may be less than the rent that you are currently paying. Such buildings were exempt from rent regulation until August 1, 1985. The landlord had the right to retroactively apply to obtain approval of the rent increases taken on or after August 1, 1985. If the landlord has applied for such approval, the tenant should not reduce the rent until a decision is made on the application.

For Further Information

If you have any questions about this Notification, or if you wish to file an Application, please contact the local office, at the address and telephone number shown on the attached Schedule "A".
